MUTOH ValueJet 1627MH WINS EDP Award 2019

At the FESPA 2019 exhibition in Munich, MUTOH has received an EDP award in the category “Best Wide-format Multipurpose Printer” for its 64”/1625mm wide ValueJet 1627MH Hybrid printer. The European Digital Press Association (EDP) is an organization consisting of publishers of European magazines that focus on printing, and covers 27 countries and reaches more than half a million readers (only with the printed editions). The EDP award competition represents the most prestigious and valuable technical awards for the digital print business in Europe, attributed by the European Digital Press Association (EDP). The winner products are selected based on very strict technical and performance criteria.

EDP AWARD 2019

The 64” wide ValueJet 1627MH hybrid inkjet printer features a blower heating dry system and unique CMYK + White resin-based inks, enabling direct printing on the widest range of white, transparent and coloured rigid & roll substrates. The ValueJet 1627MH printer is equally suited for sign & display print shops for the production of both indoor and long-term outdoor prints, as well as for graphics companies looking for a digital solution for proofing or short-run production of packaging prototypes or customized labels, even for industrial businesses specialized in thermo-forming.

Mutoh is continuously releasing products that make the difference with cutting-edge technology to provide new applications for their customers.
